

BELGIANS STILL HOLD FORTRESSES AT LIEGE; PLAN UNITED OFFENSE

GERMAN OCCUPANCY OF CITY FEAR FROM DECISIVE ACCORD. ING TO LATE DISPATCHES. —NO FIGHTING TODAY.

MAP OUT A CAMPAIGN

French and Belgian Troops Will Combine for a Concentrated Attack on Kaiser's Army—German Cruelties Reported.

London, Aug. 10.—The Belgium legation here declared at ten o'clock this morning in connection with the siege of Liege: "Up to the present everything is all right at Liege. The forts are still holding out."

Messages received here today in official quarters from the Belgium general staff assert that the occupation of the town of Liege by the German troops has not had the slightest influence on the strategic situation. It is declared that so long as the ring of forts around Liege remains intact as it is still reported to be, the guns command three of the principal roads by which German army can advance. This, it is asserted, makes it impossible under the present circumstances for the Germans to receive supplies or ammunition.

The correspondent adds: "The French succeeded in reaching the town of Liege, and working behind the Germans, cut off their retreat."

"The Germans are said to have lost 8,000 killed and wounded, while 1,700 of them were captured. I give these figures under reserve."

Belgians Plan Retreat.

New York, August 10.—Pierre Mail, Belgium consul at New York, said this afternoon that according to his advices from Belgium only two of the forts at Liege remained standing today against the German invasion. These two he said would be abandoned before the advance of the French troops, and considerable effective force has got into contact with the German advance guards. It is reported that the entire territory to the south of the Meuse has been cleared of German soldiers.

French Force Retreat.

Brussels, Aug. 10.—Belgium general staff today says the situation in regard to the Germans has modified little since Saturday. However, the German forces are said to be going backward before the advance of the French troops, and considerable effective force has got into contact with the German advance guards. It is reported that the entire territory to the south of the Meuse has been cleared of German soldiers.

Report German Cruelties.

After the German troops reached Wavre in the province of Liege, according to people who saw their arrival, they assembled all the inhabitants and chose fourteen from among them. Of these eight are said to have been shot and two hanged. The mayor himself was afterwards liberated by German officers who had been his guests the day before. In official circles here today it was asserted that no further battles in the vicinity of Liege or in the town itself had occurred.

No big engagement between the allied armies and the German troops is expected on Belgium soil until the French and Belgium combined forces take the offensive.

It is asserted here that after two hundred German soldiers occupying a farm at Solron near Pepinster, in the village of Liege, had been fired on by three workmen, the village was given over to pillage by the German troops and the workmen were taken out and shot by a firing squad.

Account of Occupation.

Brussels, Aug. 10.—The newspaper Le Soir gives the following details of the German occupation at Liege: "The Germans, on seeing spaces between the forts open before them, entered in small groups on Thursday evening. Among those who entered are General Von Emmick, commander of the tenth army corps and his staff at the citadel, which is the barracks. The governor and burgomaster of Liege were informed that unless the town and forts surrendered, the Germans would bombard the town and raze it completely. On orders from his government, the governor then left the town."

On Friday night seventeen notables of Liege, headed by the bishop, burgomaster and sheriff, with some deputies, proceeded to the citadel and begged General Von Emmick not to bombard the town. The general replied that the town and forts must surrender or he would begin the bombardment. The Germans asserted that the peasants in the district had committed hostile acts against them."

French Aid Victory.

London, Aug. 10.—A telegram from Charles de Gaulle, French minister of war, dispatched Sunday night, says a force of French troops arrived in time to participate in a fine success of General Lemans's Belgium division over the German troops investing Liege.

New York, Aug. 10.—The Belgium consul today gave out the following cablegram received from the Belgium minister of war at Brussels: "Let American exporters of wheat know that Belgium credit remains impaired and that England has advised that all boats with wheat come direct to Antwerp without stop, all payments being assured as in time of peace."

Germans Plan Attack.

Brussels, August 10.—Information from the front confirmed the report that the German troops have ceased their advance by the valley of the Ourthe. They are said to have retired to the reserve and to be preparing defensive works. The German offensive movement to the north of Liege is developing.

Simplicity Marks Service Conducted by Rev. Beach, Family Pastor, and Dr. Taylor of Washington.

Washington, Aug. 10.—The nation today is paying its final tribute to Mrs. Woodrow Wilson. Arrangements for the funeral services in the east room of the White House at two o'clock this afternoon were made by simplicity, as Mrs. Wilson desired.

Only members of the Wilson family and a very few intimate friends, members of the cabinet and their wives, were asked to be present. Those invited made a group of less than two hundred persons.

Many beautiful flowers, covered with gray broadcloth, was taken from the room in which Mrs. Wilson died, to the east room and there surrounded by beautiful flowers, sent from all parts of the country.

With the president and his daughters were Secretary McAdoo, Francis B. Sayre and Professor Stockton. Mrs. Wilson's brother, who arrived here early today, after a race across the continent from Oregon, to be present at the funeral.

Near the family a place had been reserved for the members of the cabinet and their wives. The employees of the White House, all of whom Mrs. Wilson had befriended by simple acts of kindness and thoughtfulness, were also present.

Service Very Simple.

No music was arranged for the services, and the Rev. Sylvester Beach of Princeton, New Jersey, the family pastor for many years, and the Rev. J. H. Taylor of Washington, whose church the president has attended since coming to Washington, read the scriptures and a benediction completed the services.

"Let not your heart be troubled; believe in God, believe also in me," was the opening verse from the scriptures. "My father's house are many mansions; if it were not so I would have told you, I will not leave you comfortless. I will come to you."

There were no honorary pallbearers. A group of White House attendants, who had been on duty there for many years, were honored by being chosen to carry the casket. Both houses of congress are in recess until tomorrow.

FRENCH ARMY REPORTED ON THE ALSACE BORDER READY TO MEET ENEMY

FIRST WAR BETWEEN ENGLAND AND GERMANY

The Anglo-German conflict that has just begun is the first war that has ever been fought between England and Germany, or between England and any part of Germany.

Great Britain has often been the ally of Prussia, the backbone of the present German Empire, but never her enemy. England sided with Napoleon, was technically considered at war with England, but no actual clash between the forces of these two countries ever occurred. The last time that England and Germany fought as allies was during the Boxer insurrection in China, thirteen years ago.

Until well after the accession of Emperor William II, France, and not Germany, was regarded as England's arch enemy. It was as the Kaiser's aggressive naval policy that antagonized John Bull. That wary old gentleman soon became suspicious of the upstart navy which his Teuton neighbor was constructing, and from that moment on the traditional Anglo-German friendship became a thing of the past.

BRITISH WILL WAIT FOR AUSTRIA'S STEP

England Seems Disposed to Leave Initiative With Enemies on Declaring War.

London, Aug. 10.—The Austro-Hungarian ambassador was still in London today and the British government seems disposed to leave the initiative to Austria-Hungary in the question as to whether war is to be declared between the two countries.

The delay of the French government in asking Austria-Hungary to declare her intentions is understood in London to have been due to the fact that the French fleet in the Mediterranean was engaged in conveying Algerian troops to France. France, therefore, was not ready to cope with the situation in case the troops of Austria-Hungary proved unsatisfactory, but upon the completion of the transportation of French troops yesterday, the fleet of inquiry was advanced to the Austro-Hungarian ambassador in Paris.

Indians aiding the insurgents used their knives with sanguinary effect. The federal gunboat, Guerrero, aided the garrison by shelling the position of the besiegers.

LEADS GERMAN ARMY IN WAR ON BELGIUM

The French Loss "Serious."

The French losses in the taking of Sainte Marie are not specifically given in the official report which confined itself to declaring that they were serious.

The wounded French and German soldiers were taken to the French fortress, Epinal, for treatment. A French aeroplane which ascended during the engagement was fired at. The officer who was acting as observer of the German movement received a bullet in the hip. The pilot of the machine, however, brought him to the ground and he was safely taken to the port.

To German troops flooded the valley of the Sella, hoping by this means to stop the advance of the French, but the quantity of water was not sufficient and the French troops were able to continue their march.

Five Frenchmen Shot.

How five young men were shot and killed in Germany is described in an affidavit of Jean Demoubynes, a returned student, who declared further more that two Italians traveling in the same train met the same fate.

The first Frenchman to be killed shouted: "Long live France," at Lorrach, a town of Baden, where he was waiting the train. According to the affidavit he was immediately arrested, placed against the wall of the station and shot.

Three other French youths, who were among the small crowd detained at Lorrach, protested to the killing and were told to shut their mouths. They were then led to the place where the first Frenchman was shot. A group of officers fired at them and they fell. Women in the vicinity wept the affidavit recites, knowing what had happened.

AUSTRIANS SEND AID

Are Said to Have Sent Army to Assist Germans in Attack on France—Servian Victories Reported—Montenegrins Active.

New York, Aug. 10.—Official reports from France give no definite details of the French movements in Alsace near the Swiss frontier where General Joffre is believed to be in command. Austrian troops have been hurried there to the aid of the Germans in an important battle which is believed to be imminent.

Indications are that another forward movement of the main French force is being planned near Metz, as official reports from Paris say the German troops have flooded the Sella valley between Metz and Nancy to hinder the French advance, but the quantity of water is understood to be insufficient to prevent the French movement.

Strong Advance Planned.

Aside from the flanking movement through Belgium by which the French assume the German army was trying to get to the aid of the great French fortresses on the frontier, indications were today that a strong German advance is to be made on France by way of Luxembourg.

A German reconnoitering patrol penetrated forty-six miles into French territory.

The London Daily Telegraph's Brussels correspondent, says Germany is mobilizing one million of the final reserve.

Numerous skirmishes are reported along the Franco-German frontier. None, however, are very serious.

The French troops are reported in Paris to have seized a German aeroplane factory at Mulhouse.

Germans Occupy Liege.

German troops occupy the town of Liege, but not the surrounding fortresses which were still holding out today, according to Belgium reports.

A lull in the fighting was announced from Brussels, which city expects to be spared a German aeroplane factory at Mulhouse.

The German cruisers Gueben and Breslau have evaded their British and French pursuers and arrived in the Adriatic. The Austrian cruiser reported proceeding from Pola to Succor.

Activity in South.

Paris reports the Austrian troops to have fallen back before the Serbians on the Bosnian frontier.

Austrian artillery bombarded the Austrian fortifications at the port of Cattaro yesterday and an Austrian cruiser bombarded Antivari, Montenegro.

Ships reaching New York today reported hearing wireless messages that the North German Lloyd steamer Kron Prince Wilhelm had been captured by the British cruiser Essex in the North Atlantic.

Skirmishes on Frontier.

Paris, August 10.—A statement issued by the war department says that numerous skirmishes are taking place along the entire front of the French army. One clash with the Germans was violent and the losses on both sides were serious.

The official communication adds that the German troops are receiving reinforcements and that the French also are being reinforced. A battle began on Saturday on the ridges of the Vosges mountain in which aeroplanes took part. The French troops after a desperate encounter obtained possession of the passes of Bombonne and Sainte Marie. Then on Sunday morning when the fighting was resumed they took position dominating Sainte Marie-Aux-Mines.

Growing Old by Degrees. Growing old has many stages. You can remember the time when, in reading your favorite author, you were disgusted to find that he had made his hero forty years old, and you wondered how he could be guilty of imputing romance to such an unconscionable age. By and by, even though you found forty years to be the old age of youth, you were soled by the thought that it was the youth of old age, and still later you will wonder where youth ends and old age begins.

Why "Blackballed." The ancient Greeks used marked shells for voting, and from the Greek word ostrakon comes the English word ostracize, that is, to shut out by one unfavorable shell. "Blackballed" means the same thing, once upon a time white and black balls being used for secret voting.

STATE PATHFINDER CAR FOR AUTO TOUR VISITS CITY TODAY

Janesville Will Be On Route of Fourth Annual Run of State Automobile Association.

The pathfinder car for the fourth annual tour of the Wisconsin State Automobile Association arrived in this city from Madison shortly after nine o'clock this morning. M. C. Moore, chairman of the executive committee, and H. A. Apple, secretary of the association, were in charge of the party.

which also included representatives of several Milwaukee papers. Mr. Moore is an expert at routing automobile tours, and has personally mapped out more than 15,000 miles of road. The state tour will be held on September 2, 3 and 4, the distance covered will be 472 miles. The American Automobile Association has granted a sanction and the tour will be conducted under grade one rules of this association and the tour will be conducted economy test added to it.

Tour Trophies Offered. Four trophies will be hung up as follows. The Sentinel trophy for the best average made in both the reliability and fuel contests. This is a sweepstakes gift and is the same handsome trophy that has been put up for similar association tours in the past.

The Free Press trophy is for the car having the best record. There will be penalizations for work on car while on the road, and these will be totaled at the finish of the tour. The car making the best showing and having the least points assessed against it will be declared the winner of the Free Press trophy, which will also be a handsome design.

The Wisconsin Motorist trophy will be for the car showing the best record in fuel consumption, only gasoline being considered. Heavy cars will have an equal chance with the light vehicles for the reason that weight will be considered. The outcome is expected to settle many arguments on just how much mileage certain cars can make on a gallon of gasoline.

The Emil Schandeln trophy is for private owners. This trophy has been contested for in previous Wisconsin tours, the event being solely for private owners and is strictly an amateur event.

All the competing cars in the reliability tour for the big trophies will be subjected to a technical examination immediately after the tour, and a competent committee will pass judgment on merits and demerits. In this technical examination broken and disabled parts will be taken into consideration. There will be many other penalties including penalizations for reporting early and late at controls. In the fuel economy contest, all gasoline used will be accurately measured and a record kept of same by a special committee which will have this end of the contest in charge. In the Schandeln trophy contest, penalties will be assessed for work on the car while on the road and also for arriving early and late at controls.

PHILIPP TO SPEAK HERE ON WEDNESDAY

Conservative Republican Candidate for Governor Will Talk at Janesville Fair.

Emanuel L. Philipp of Milwaukee, one of the prominent republican candidates for governor at the coming primary election, will be in Janesville on Wednesday to speak at the Janesville fair.

Mr. Philipp is a very strong speaker and he presents the issues upon which he is standing clearly and forcibly. The fact that he is a strong champion of the movement for decreased state expenditures and lower taxation has brought his candidacy close to the voters and beyond question there will be a large attendance of Rock County farmers on the Fair Grounds to hear him.

Rock County is showing a great deal of support for Mr. Philipp's candidacy and from the present outlook he will receive a very large vote in this county in the primary election, according to his campaign managers.

SERVICES ARE HELD FOR LILLIAN GRANT

Lillian L. Grant, Who Was Drowned at Boaz, Wisconsin, Friday, Buried at Palmyra Cemetery Today.

Funeral services were held this morning for Lillian L. Grant, who was drowned at Boaz, Wis., Friday, at St. Peter's English Lutheran church, the Rev. E. O. Hoffmeister officiating. Remains were taken to Palmyra, where services were held at the grave, interment being made in the Palmyra cemetery. The church during the services was crowded with relatives and friends of the girl, and members of her Sunday school class attended the services in a body. Those who served as pallbearers were Harold Lawson, Leon Jones, Earl Harvey, Edward Steed, Alfred Schoof and Leo Foley. Florence Hunt, Helen Hartnett, Harriett Griffen, Myrtle Hell, Ruth Decker, Florence Jackson, Elnor Heming, playmates of Miss Grant, were flower girls. A special car was chartered over the St. Paul road to Palmyra, and a large number of friends accompanied the remains for final services.

Lillian Lauretta Grant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Grant, was born in Palmyra, Wisconsin, October 3rd, 1899, and resided in that city until two years of age, when her parents moved to Boaz, in Richland county. She attended school at this village until she reached the age of six years. While a resident of Boaz an intimate friendship grew between Lillian Grant and Minnie Groh, who was also drowned Friday. The family moved to Richland Center and Madison before their residence in Janesville. Lillian Grant has attended the Janesville schools for the past year and graduated with high honors into the eighth grade last year.

The loss of the girl is not only a severe one to her parents and relatives, but also to her school and playmates, for she was of a very pleasant disposition with a kindness toward all. Although a tender age she was fond of music and flowers, and her favorite aspiration was to care for the ill. She leaves to mourn her loss her parents, two older sisters, Miss Leah and Mrs. Ethel Kaisermann, and an older brother, Curtis, and a younger brother, Roy, besides other relatives.

More detailed accounts of the accident show that she met her death in a vain attempt to save the life of her friend Minnie Groh in the small creek which runs through the Groh farm, where she was visiting. The two girls, together with a cousin of the Groh girl, named Fitzgerald, age 12, went to the creek Friday morning while the boy was swimming. The Groh girl went wading and while shouting with laughter and enjoyment fell into a pool six feet deep. Her cries attracted the attention of the Groh girl and Fitzgerald, who were a short distance away from the pool. The struggling child was dragged into the deep water. The boy attempted to save the girl, but stepped over the embankment into the deep water and was forced under the surface. Aid came shortly and the two girls' bodies were found and futile attempts to resuscitate life was made. The Fitzgerald boy was unconscious but was resuscitated.

FOLDING GAS STOVE

Collapses and Disappears in Opening in the Wall.

Out along the Pacific Coast they are revolutionizing housekeeping methods which have prevailed for many generations. The type of bed which has been handed down from times beyond the memory of man is now discarded and in its place are wheeled and folding devices which slide or fold into the walls and many other pieces of furniture are so designed that they have one use in the daytime and another at night. By this means the problem of living has been greatly simplified. A few rooms equipped in this manner answer the purpose of double the number furnished in the ordinary and accepted manner. A few magic passes in the morning transforms a bedroom into a sitting-room, dining-room or kitchen.

The latest addition to these innovations is the folding gas stove, which has been designed and invented by a resident of Los Angeles, Cal. When this is expanded it forms a regulation gas stove with full facilities for performing all the cooking operations, but when there is no demand for its presence it drops back into a recess in the wall. As a safety measure the gas is automatically turned off when the stove is folded back into place.

FOOTBALL BEGINNING TO CALL ATTENTION OF SPORTING WORLD

Initial Call for Season's Real Work Will be Given on Saturday, September Nineteenth.

New York, Aug. 10.—Spectre-like football is beginning to stalk baseball. Although the prospective champion contenders are yet in the making, the gridiron game is barely a month away. Coaches and candidates for the eleven are studying the game, and soon the tackling dummy will tremble and sway under the clutch of the eager player, for on Saturday, September 19, the initial call to athletic conflict will come and from that day until the first Saturday of December football will rise and wage its short but active reign.

Viewed from every angle the approaching season promises to be the most remarkable and record breaking in the history of the sport. More than 200 colleges and high schools are scheduled in the east, south and middle west, and contests are to be played on every day except Sunday during the two and one-half months of the football cycle.

Not in number of games alone is the coming season depending for its fame, however, for the 1914 campaign will witness features that cause football to stand out with unusual prominence. Many spectacular inter-collegiate contests are scheduled, including the Harvard-Michigan game, Yale and Princeton universities will dedicate new and mammoth stadiums. A host of former famous players will appear as coaches and critics to which the football games are unusual will entertain eleven, notably Washington, where the Army-Navy game will be played.

As has been the case for several years the Carlisle Indians and the Michigan college eleven have been the main event of the season with the game set for Saturday, September 19.

Cornell follows close on their heels with the game against Ursinus on the following Wednesday, and on the following Saturday Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Dartmouth and a host of other eleven in various parts of the country swing into action. Early in October the middle west and southern university teams den mole skins and from all points of the compass will come the sound of thudding pigskin and the clash of tackler and runner.

Before the month's country will begin to meet foes worthy of their best efforts and the season will be at its height. The schedule for the middle Saturday of October is typical of the football season. Carlisle plays Princeton; Amherst meets Trinity; Princeton faces Lafayette; Chicago lines up against the State University of Iowa; Oregon will oppose Washington; and the Wisconsin-Purdue game will establish a precedent by journeying to Philadelphia to play the University of Pennsylvania eleven.

From this date on the big games follow rapidly. Saturday, October 10, finds among other prominent contests: Harvard vs. Pennsylvania; Cornell vs. Princeton; Chicago vs. Purdue; Michigan vs. Syracuse; Pennsylvania vs. Carlisle; William vs. Trinity; Yale vs. Washington; and Jersey vs. The East. Saturday of the month will witness the biggest inter-collegiate game of the season when Michigan plays Harvard at Cambridge. Other seasons, however, will not be lacking in feature contests. For Cornell and Holy Cross play at Ithaca, Chicago and Wisconsin at Madison; Carlisle and Syracuse at Buffalo; Dartmouth and Vermont at Hanover; Princeton and Yale at Princeton; Notre Dame and Haskell Indians in North Dakota; Vanderbilt and Virginia at Nashville; Yale and Colgate at New Haven; and Pennsylvania and Swarthmore at Philadelphia.

The closing Saturday of November will find the college eleven of all nations on edge for the championship games of the season. Close to the games between rival and well matched teams are scheduled the football feature contests being: Minnesota vs. Wisconsin; Yale vs. Brown; Pennsylvania vs. Michigan; Massachusetts vs. Tulane; Tennessee vs. Vanderbilt; Pennsylvania state vs. Lehigh; Wellesley vs. Williams; and Cornell vs. Holy Cross. In the east the attention of the majority of football followers will be centered upon the Harvard-Princeton game at Cambridge.

day. The Cornell-Pennsylvania match is the premier attraction of the east on Thanksgiving Day, but other sections have equally interesting games. Notre Dame plays Syracuse in the college's stadium; Virginia and North Carolina meet at Richmond; Vanderbilt and the University of the South at Nashville, and Louisiana and Tulane at New Orleans.

The season closes with the Army-Navy game at Washington on the following Saturday, and the game between the two United States training academies is expected to take an added picturesque in its capital setting. For years those who are most interested in giving this contest a real governmental sanction and atmosphere have sought to have the game between the soldiers and sailors at Washington, Philadelphia, Princeton and New York have all entertained the Army and Navy corps and it is a fitting climax to a most unusual and spectacular season that this game be played at the nation's capital.

Followers of track athletics are looking forward to an international contest during the national championship of the Amateur Athletic Union, which will be decided at Baltimore, Md. next month. Except something unlooked for should intervene, England's premier sprinter, R. Appleby, is expected to come over and measure strides with America's fastest men, of whom Howard Drew is easily the swiftest. A meeting between Appleby and Drew at 100 and 220 yards would prove a wonderful attraction. Many of the experts think that Appleby's recent showing around two turns in 1:5 seconds for the hundred yards race as a likely winner at that distance, but few are of the opinion that he would be able to take Drew's measure over the shorter trip. The American officials are very anxious to bring these two together and it is hoped that they will not meet with disappointment.

International interest in athletic events will be revived again a week hence when Georges Carpentier, the French light-weight, and Young Ahearn, the American, who has grown into the middleweight division, meet in a London ten twenty-round contest for a purse of $50,000.

Promoter Burge has secured an option on the services of "Gunboat" Smith, for two bouts under his management, in one of which Smith is to meet Bombardier Wells, and in another Burge hopes to bring the French and American heavyweights together again, as to settled the supremacy of the two, which still is a much discussed topic, owing to the unsatisfactory termination of the Carpentier-Smith bout in London last month.

Sport Snap Shots

One of the Philadelphia papers has entered into a warm dispute with the Athletic owners over a score-board in front of the office of the newspaper, whereon is displayed not alone the score, but a record of the game and not all that occurs. The score-board, of course, attracts quite a crowd, and is a very good aid for the paper that operates it. The Athletic management, however, declares that the board draws from their attendance, as it entertains fans who might otherwise be willing to pay the price and watch the game. Last spring it was that Carlisle made the first protest. Visiting teams declared that more fans crowded in front of the score-board than came to see the game. The other club desired that the Athletics pay a little stricter heed to the contract with the telegraph company which provides that scores of the games may not be telegraphed to score-boards in the same town. The whole affair has worked quite a base for him, will be more or less successful in this, but they managed to incur the displeasure of the Baseball Writers' Association, which then entered into the fracas. The whole affair has attained a high degree of publicity and there is some questioning as to how it will be amicably settled.

Branch Rickey, prominent manager of the St. Louis Browns, declares that Derrill Pratt, the young man playing second base for him, will be more than a fair Pratt. And when he outgrows his fault of booting balls that are coming right at him he will be one of the best second sackers the game has ever known. Pratt is the type of player who is bound to succeed. Pratt fielded ahead of Eddie Collins last season and accepted more chances.

SLUGGEST GAME WON BY CARDS--14 TO 2

Poorly Played Game Goes to Janesville Cardinals by Score of Four-Ten to Twelve.

In a baseball nightmare the Janesville Cardinals defeated the White-water nine Sunday afternoon at the Association Park diamond by a score of 14 to 2. The game was just as the score indicates, full of heavy hitting—bad errors and poor baseball, but the crowd of fans who witnessed the "doings" had their moneys worth, for to be able to sit in the mammoth new grandstand and enjoy the cooling breeze that swept across the expansive field was worth the two bits.

From the start to the finish the game was only an imitation of good baseball, but the home team won, for they walloped the pill harder and hung on the ball more in the pinches and showed a little more "grey matter" in playing the game. Crandall, the mound, but George must have left all his speed and most of his ability at Milton, for the White-water nine banged out twelve hits and Crandall only fanned eight during the nine innings. In the first inning the Cards made a near committing suicide, for the visitors jumped on Crandall and when they quit maltreating him had scored five runs. It was pitiful—for all the White-water team had to do was to stop and swing at the ball and if it did not go safe the Cardinal infielders made it safe. The side batted around, but finally Porter glued onto a grounder for the third out.

Kackel, the hurler for the visitors, was a lanky southerner that appeared to have plenty of steam, a sandlot drop and a pair of new shoestrings. In the first inning he hopped onto the Cards in whirlwind style and Hall, the first base man, was what one of Kackel's sweeping curves on the back. In the second the invaders only pounded Crandall for three hits, but one of these was a double with two men on the sacks. The tallies scored on this blow, but Anderson, who was guilty of giving the ball a ride, was left stranded on second.

Mr. Kackel got his in the second inning, for the Cardinals made a disastrous assault on that drop and Mr. Letty Kackel was pounded for seven hits, and these, mixed with a couple of boots and a walk, gave the Cards the edge on the game by one run, having scored nine tallies. Kackel's slow going was proving a detriment for the Cards and they had the holders doing the Marathon stunt out in the hayfield. Porter, first up, was given life on an error. Nehr walked and the bases were packed for him, but when Ryan was safe on another boot Crandall lifted a neat single, and one more run was put on the adding machine. Berger busted a single, scoring two. With only one man on the circuit the Cards started the work of filling them up again. Sullivan walked and Hell, after two strikes had been called on him, took a generous swing at that drop and the ball landed safely out in center field while the baserunners scampered home. Hall and Butters did not have the nerve to strike out, so hit safely and Butters' malloped scored two markers. By this time Mr. Kackel was ready to retreat to the coop and his shoestrings were hanging.

Crandall brightened up the next two innings and kept the invaders away from the plate. In the fourth inning Nehr, catcher for the Cards, made the only real hair raising play of the day when he grabbed a long fly off Collins' bat. The ball appeared out of Nehr's reach, but Nehr hit it out and stuck his glove in the path of the ball and hung on.

In the fifth the flitsors scored two and the Cards poled out hits enough to make it even for the round. In the seventh the Cards mustered up two more, making a total of fourteen. In the sixth White-water managed to scare up a little rally split and cut down the Cardinal lead by two runs. Both nines were guilty of many boots which figured in the run in, but the White-water infielders exercised as little baseball ability as a sandlot nine. Collins, their first baseman, muffed three that helped increase the local's score, and Dorr dropped a high fly that allowed two tallies when two men were down. Butters proved the biggest leak on the Janesville team, booting two grounders. Summary:

A young pitcher making his first appearance in big league company hit the first batter, passed the next two, and made a wild throw in the first inning. As he went to the bench the manager of the team asked, "What's the matter? Are you nervous?" "Naw," he said angrily, "but my dam limbs shake."

WITH GRAIN OF SALT.

Readers of the war dispatches appearing in the Gazette are requested to do so with a grain of salt. Thus far the dispatches are all of a pro-English, French and Belgian and we have not heard from the German sources of information.

While reports of the progress of the European war continue to come from sources hostile to Germany, the total absence of official announcements from Berlin is such as to lead us to communicate with the outside world from Amsterdam and London) on Saturday night created an unfavorable impression.

"During Saturday only statements claiming the capture of Liege and denying reports of a German defeat were allowed to pass out at Berlin.

Nothing was heard from German official sources regarding the invasion of Alsace-Lorraine and the capture of Muehlhausen reported by the French.

Although correspondents of the Associated Press are using their best efforts to obtain the German version of the events of the last few days that have startled the world, German official maintain silence.

Extra editions will not be published except in case of unusual news being received, but the bulletin service will be continued and the latest dispatches received will be posted throughout the city as well as on the bulletin board at the Gazette office.

Until the news world adjusts itself to the conditions that exist, until the means for evading the strict censorship of the European governments can be obtained and the real news sent out over the Atlantic cables to the newspapers of this country, the readers are requested to keep in mind the fact that both sides of the struggle are not represented in the dispatches although those received and published are as authentic as possible and all sensational rumors eliminated.

PLEA FOR GERMANY.

To all who have been mystified by Germany's apparent defiance of Europe, and because they have been mystified, have concluded that the Kaiser, blinded by ambition and over-estimate of his power, has entered recklessly upon an undertaking which must bring disaster to the fatherland, we recommend the suggestions of

Professor Munsterberg of Harvard university.

He dwells with no sufficient emphasis, it seems to us, on Germany's failure to restrain Austria while there was still time. Serbia, he assumes, was instigated to molest her powerful neighbor by the great Slav, Russia.

Of the hatred engendered among the Serbs by Austria's arbitrary refusal to let them take what they had won at terrible sacrifice in the war against

Turkey he takes no note. Of Austria's flat refusal to recognize their sovereign right themselves to identify and discipline whoever among them was guilty of the assassination at Sarajevo he has nothing to say. His sole concern, apparently, is to divert attention to the irresistible conflict in which the German nation, standing for the higher culture, has taken the lead against the forces of comparative barbarism. In France he sees a nation governed solely by the mean motives of vengeance; in the English a people actuated by jealousy. To him Germany is the champion of the light, driven to take up arms against the onrushing myriads of darkness.

Acceptance of Professor Munsterberg's plea for fair play involves rejection of belief in the sincerity of French and English efforts to prevent a rupture between Russia and Austria. This condition few Americans, however great their admiration for the German people, are prepared to meet. Nevertheless, no impartial observer of the tragedy now going on can look forward without misgivings to the demands which Russia is likely to make if the cause she has espoused is wholly successful. To England especially the future, whatever the result of the war, is fraught with causes of great anxiety.

THE ENGLISH VIEW.

The Spectator, published in London, says: "The great war has come, as every sensible person knew it would come, very suddenly, without apparent reason.

"Germany and Austria-Hungary already are at war with Russia, France,

Great Britain, Belgium, and Serbia

at any moment Germany may be at war with Holland. Italy and Roumania are almost certain to come in as soon as Russian troops appear in strength on their frontiers.

"Russia wants Transylvania, and its 4,000,000 Roumanians, now oppressed by Austria, Denmark, and Switzerland, may very easily be forced to take a hand for the small powers are beginning to realize that the issue for them is one of life or death. If the Germans win there will be no place left for the little independent nations. They know that they always will have a genuine friend and proteCTOR in Great Britain.

"What caused the war? Our answer is that Germany was ready and determined. She thought that we,

Russia, and France were neither ready nor determined, and therefore she struck.

"Germany began her preparations for war as soon as the Kiel canal was finished—that is, as soon as in her belief her readiness was at its maximum. The German government always has been a firm believer in the importance of material preparation as well as in the idea that war is not a matter of self-defense."

BEWARE OF PROMISES.

The Madison Democrat urges that every Wisconsin candidate is for economy. No more do we hear the easy declaration that taxes are high but will be higher.

Yet the public needs to beware.

The very persons who now vociferously preach economy are, with their friends, identically the ones who are responsible for the vast extravagance which prevails. Taxpayers must discriminate. They must view with cold eye and merciless calculation the political part in connection with the promises of candidates. They must look back over the history of this state for a dozen years and see what party, what element, has brought about the ruinous and riotous condition in which the state and the people now find themselves. Let this be done, and little notice need be paid to platform promises and pledges.

It is very well known to every observant citizen of the commonwealth

where the blame lies—equally well known what party and what faction really stands for a correction of the evils from which we suffer.

Let there be no deception and no credulity. We are paying the bill an outrageous, inexcusable bill in the way of taxation, and those who have forced this burden upon us must be held to accountability—they and their coadjutors in any and every party.

The time now is here for actual reform; and reform at this juncture means reaction!

The state in a large measure must turn about face.

There must be abolition of commissions, declination of the army of offiholders, a huge lessening of superfluous government. There must come an end to a fraudulent progressivism which is an arrogant swindle upon the people. This progressivism means nothing so much as taxation, and oppression of business, of manufacturing, of finance. It means the discouragement of investment, of development of natural resources. It means a hungry search for more sources of taxation to feed the army of offiholders which make up the utterly un-republican bureaucracy that curses

Wisconsin today. Our taxpayers must scan the records of candidates, and their alliances more closely than they do the mere promises of opportunists after offices—for all now are promising alike! What we want is to be assured of action after the election—the right kind of action, the right kind of accomplishment, in the interest of sane reform, not ready platitudes at this stage of the game when votes only are sought.

This is Janesville fair week. It is up to the citizens of Janesville and the surrounding country to make it a success. They can do this by giving it liberal patronage. It is to be hoped that business men will follow the suggestion of Mayor Fathers and make Thursday next a half holiday and give all an opportunity to visit the exhibit which bids fair to rival any fair in the state this year.

What Rock county and all of southern Wisconsin needs just now are good, hard, drenching rains. The soil has been harvested but the corn and tobacco need attention to prevent them from being burned up by the blistering heat of the past few weeks.

Even showers are welcomed by vegetation.

Be a booster for Janesville and the fair. Stop criticizing the work of the Park association and boost. The most pessimistic will have hard work finding anything to complain of after one visit at the grounds.

Ten dollar hogs mean something to the farmers just at present and it also means much to the average house-

FAIR GROUNDS WAS A BUSY SPOT TODAY

STORM THIS MORNING DID NOT PREVENT WORKERS WHO ARE PREPARING FOR EVENT.

TUESDAY OPENING DAY

Over 140 Entries Are Closed for Track Events—A Record Attendance Is Expected Tomorrow.

Activities today at the Park Association grounds, where the big Jamesville fair is to be held this week, beginning Tuesday and lasting through Friday, were many, and all indications point to a big opening tomorrow.

Several hundred laborers were at work this morning erecting stands for exhibits, refreshments and for some live stock. Sheep, cattle and horses arrived this morning in large numbers. They represent the best breeds from this section of the country.

There will be something doing every minute. The track is undergoing constant scraping, which with the aid of the rains this morning should make it ideal for the speedsters to break records in faster time. Over one hundred and forty entries in the racing events are already scheduled, with horses from several states represented.

The racing program promises to be one of the fair's leading events during the entire four days.

The new grandstand is one of the best in the country. It will accommodate many more people than did the old structure, and is an ideal spot to sit and view the various track and field events.

An attendance of enormous size is expected to visit the fair on the opening day, tomorrow. Accommodations are to be extended, and the fair committee are devising new schemes to handle large numbers most satisfactorily. Guards and special police are to be stationed at all corners of the lot.

Special vaudeville acts and other novelty acts will be among the activities to break the monotony of the day. Bands will furnish music, and in the evening plans are being made for big doings in the downtown districts of the city.

One feature at the fair will be the DuBrook's Society Acts. They offer an excellent program for tomorrow, which is as follows:

Ending with the Roman Race. Horses, Colonel Pearl, Blue Bell, Silver Top, Joe McMeer.

Steeple Chase (Hurdles). Riders—William B. Earl Barger, Wild Fire, H. Cunningham, Sea Green, Roy B. Box, Honolulu, Jack Edwards, Fly by Night, R. Wilcox, Idaho, Tex Cooper, Frenchy, H. Gustafson, Denver, J. O'Meara, Sky Rocket.

Comedy Mule Act. The man with the aburn hair with a side color and a pen full of determination and cussedness. Darkey melody behind the fence. Look out here mule.

Polo Match (Cowboys). W. C. DuBrook, Excell, Mrs. W. C. DuBrook, Pappoose, Cunningham, Honolulu, Jack Edwards, Fly by Night, R. Wilcox, Idaho, Tex Cooper, Frenchy, H. Gustafson, Denver, J. O'Meara, Sky Rocket.

Horses—Indian Chief, Melba DuBrook, Sparkle, Robt. Dunlap, Rocket, Miss Ethel King, Tango, Prof. DuBrook, Jr., age 8, Ivanhoe, W. C. DuBrook.

Hounds (Dog Hunt). Blue Hounds, Black and Tan, Red Bone and Spotted, One Old Red Fox, One Red Head.

The Chattanooga Four will furnish some real melody from the Cotton Fields and Cane Brakes.

SCOTTY CONFIDENT OF WINNING MATCH

Young Mahoney Exoner Who Meets Kid Mahoney Here Wednesday Night Arrives in City Today.

Young Scotty, who will meet Kid Mahoney of Racine in the main bout of the boxing exhibition on Wednesday, August 12th, arrived in Jamesville this morning from Milwaukee, and will put on the boxing gloves of his training in this city. Charles Lyke, "the fighting farmer," who is to box Burns in the curtain raiser, accompanied Scotty.

Young Scotty declared that he was down to weight on Wednesday after ten days of hard training, and would ease up the next two days, only taking a run tomorrow morning and a little boxing in preparation for the match.

Confidence marked Scotty's attitude on the bout, and the Milwaukee kid was brimming over with hopes that he could defeat the Racine flash.

Lyke has been attempting to follow the steps of Scotty in training, but the Jamesville boy found that the grueling pace Scotty set on the grinds was too far and too fast. Lyke will make his debut in the game against Burns.

Reports received here show that Hal Clark is working earnestly taking on weight for his eight round bout with Barney Griffen. This bout should be as good as the main match, as both men are noted fist artists.

CHOSEN A MEMBER OF GENERAL COUNCIL

Joseph H. Scholler of This City Is One of Few on Nation-wide Optical Council.

Joseph H. Scholler, optometrist of this city, has been chosen a member of the legislative council of the American Optical association, one member being chosen from each state. The object of the council is to raise the standard of optometry and to promote interest for the conservation of vision, and to protect the public from the invasion of the incompetents and quacks who make the few open states of which Wisconsin is one—their field of prey. Thirty-three states now have laws regulating the practice of optometry, and as the non-qualified and fakirs are driven from all these states they seek new pastures in the open states.

A bill similar to the one vetoed by Governor McGovern will be introduced at the next legislature, requiring everybody to pass an examination for the practice of optometry. Such a bill is sorely needed in Wisconsin as the state is fairly over-run by these incompetents.

There was an official on one of our great railroads who was retired at seventy. "He'll die now," said his friends kindly. But he didn't. Instead, he became interested in the wild flowers, and now he is too busy in looking for the ram's head orchid, and trying to find a new station for the hart's tongue fern, and tramping around in the woods and fields in all kinds of weather, even to think of dying. Anyway, he wouldn't have time until he's finished his monograph on the willows of the United States.—Lippincott's.

Accounting for the Absence. Bacon—"I see what most attracted the attention of a party of distinguished Europeans on an American tour was the absence of fences and hedges." Egbert—"They might have reached a locality in the West recently visited by a cyclone."

First Laughing Gas. Nitrous oxide gas (laughing gas) was first introduced into England on March 31, 1857.

Science Notes. There has just been installed at Queen's Hall in London a color organ for representing musical effects in terms of colored lights thrown upon a screen, which has been designed expressly for the deaf. Each note played produces a corresponding color, and the color combinations are said to cause the same delight to the deaf as the harmonious sounds of a composition do to the normal ear. The organ was devised by Professor Wallace Rimington, and among those who have become very much interested in the project is M. Alexander Schubin, a Russian composer, who has achieved a foremost position in European musical circles.

The layman watching a tiny back saw blade working its way through a tough piece of steel or other metal is filled with wonder for it seems like putting a tiny boy to do the task of a giant. On account of the severity of its service, considerable ingenuity has been expended in the improvement of these little blades. The latest idea is that of making a saw which has a soft flexible back with hard tempered teeth. As a test of the strength of this blade, it was found that it would support two tons representing a total weight of 283 pounds without breaking.

The notably small casualty record of the British railroad, which has often been compared with that of this country is due to two causes: First, the practically universal use of the absolute block signal system; secondly, the absolute obedience to that system, required of the engine-men. Statistics show that as far back as 1881, five-sixths of the double-track railway in Great Britain was equipped

The Evening Chit-Chat

PRACTICE VERSUS PREACHING.
THE little boy sidled up to his mother, put his arm about her neck and shyly whispered to her.
His mother listened, then laughed. "What do you suppose he says?" she asked her caller. "He says he thinks you are a very pretty lady and he wishes you would come home to live."
The caller laughed and hid his head in a sofa pillow in an agony of embarrassment.

What a strange, surprising world this must seem to little people, and what strange, incalculable creatures big folks must appear to them.

RUTH CAMERON

And how hard it must be for them to learn principles of right and honor and justice when that which is taught them as principle is so often contradicted in action.

The little boy will be taught some day that it is honorable to respect a confidence but long before that time he will have learned that those who teach him do not always respect his confidences.

A child's whisper should be as sacred as a grown man or woman's guarded confidence. A whisper is the child's way of saying "Please keep this to yourself." And yet again and again, I have heard mothers answer a child's whispered request in a loud tone which shared the matter with everyone within hearing, or as this mother did, promptly betray some whispered confidence for the amusement of her guest.

Again that idea of honor and right must a child get who hears his sacred feelings made the subject of jest. I once knew a little girl of eight who confided in her mother her deep admiration for a certain small member of the opposite sex. The mother thought this youthful love affair hugely amusing and promptly told everyone about it. It would be hard to make anybody who does not keenly remember his own childhood realize how that little girl suffered when she heard people joking about a feeling that to her was sacred.

Again the injustice which even intelligent parents show in punishing not according to the real heinousness, but according to the inconvenience it causes them, must give children strange ideas of justice.

Parent and child is the only relationship between which corporal punishment is permitted in this country. A master cannot strike his servant, a mistress may not lay the tip of her finger on her maid. The right to use brute force is a dangerous power. It tends to breed lack of self-control in the ruler and rebellion, or fear, sycophancy and deceit in the one governed.

Of course the fact that there is a bond of strong natural love between parents and children curbs the power and lessens the danger. Nevertheless many a child has learned the wicked lesson that might makes right from unjust punishment.

Do not think it does not matter whether you are just and honorable to the child because it does not understand these qualities. It matters very much indeed.

"He who helps a child," says Phillips Brooks, "helps humanity with a distinctness and an immediateness which no other help given to human creatures in any other stage of their human life can possibly give." And the opposite is true of him who, failing to be honorable and just toward the little folks, harms a child.

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am dead in love with a man of 30 years, my age does no harm. However, a man usually being 15; in fact, I am engaged to him, but my folks do not approve. What shall I do?

(1) Is it an old-fashioned name? (2) How should a girl dress, being 15? (3) How should a girl dress, being 15? (4) It isn't the best thing to do, wait until you are engaged to marry a man before you careen him.

(5) If he asks your permission and you do not object he may smoke, though a real gentleman tries never to smoke when in the company of a lady. If he makes a long visit, however, and feels that he must smoke, he should ask to be allowed to smoke, no matter how well acquainted he is. It will be all right to light his pipe if they are old friends.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) If a boy calls on a girl, who should be the first to say goodnight? (2) At what time? (3) Should a girl ask the boy to come again, if she likes him? (4) If a girl asks a boy to come into the house, how must she ask him? (5) I am a girl of 20 years and weigh 135 pounds. How is that for my age. I am of medium height. (6) Is it out of place for me to wear clothes made just like my sister's?

(1) Yes. (2) You should dress in the colors and styles most becoming to each. It would be foolish for both to wear light colors, for instance, and for the blonde to the blonde and not to the brunette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am 19 and going with a fellow 23. Is he too old? (2) While out riding with a fellow horse? (3) When a fellow takes a girl home is it wrong to sit out in the buggy, or should she come right into the house?

(4) Is it wrong to put your arms around a boy friend? (5) Is it wrong to let a fellow smoke in your company, and should a girl light his pipe when he asks her?

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Last winter I frosted part of my nose, which left a red shiny skin. What can I do to make it look like it was before? (2) When out walking with a girl, should a fellow ask for her arm? BROWN EYES.

(1) Massage it gently ever night with cold cream. After washing apply witchhazel. Witchhazel may be put on several times a day to advantage of the nose.

(2) Do not take her arm unless you need to help her over some difficult place. She is supposed to be able to walk alone.

Everyday Talks To Everyday People

(BY FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.)

A girl of eighteen, just an ordinary girl, from a plain, common home, from a home where all the homely virtues were preached and practised every day in the year. A boy, from a home where all the homely virtues were held in abeyance, but where all the little observances of refined living were scrupulously observed. For a year they had been friends. He was returning to his home in a far distant state that night. You will wait for me," he said as he stood looking down into her clear young eyes. "You will be true to me?" "I will always be true to you. I will wait for you," returned the girl. She had known no other boy friend. To her he was perfection. All the virtues given to the heroes of fiction was, to her, combined in this six feet of masculinity. She was young.

Twelve years had been ticked off; thrown into time's discard. The girl of eighteen was a woman of thirty, teaching in one of the woman's departments of a well known university. She had met men—many of them. But to her mind always returned that blue black night in June. When the young professor of mathematics had shown her marked attentions, she had almost decided to accept them. He was a likable fellow, a big, clean-cut, and fair in his dealings; plainly on the up-grade. She had attended a party with him. They were walking slowly homeward through the soft purple twilight of a perfect summer night. There rose against her wistful eyes another face than his. A face with a set jaw, understanding eyes and a broad brow, topped with a heavy mass of blue black hair. The calm eyes seemed to compel her gaze. "You were waiting for me?" How plainly his voice sounded. She saw again the timid girl, ignorant of life; its many perplexities, with a heart which seemed to beat for this boy-man alone. The night was warm, but the girl shivered. "I am going in, now," she said. "You will excuse me. Good-night." The young professor walked down the path bitterly disappointed. He had intended asking her tonight.

The girl slowly mounted the stairs to her room. Across the street a piano was playing one of her mother's favorite songs. One of the songs he had often joined in singing, in their little room way back home. Her throat ached. How she longed for her mother now. She sunk down on the floor, resting her arms on the window ledge. The moon was rising over the trees and the shimmering beauty, and to the hungry hearted girl showed panoramic like the scenes of her happy youth. Happiness seemed far removed from her life to-night. Two years since she had received a letter from him. A letter telling her how well he was doing. Another year and he would be able to give her the home he had always dreamed of. Another year and he and she would start together the road whereon they would know no separation while life lasted. Softly she sobbed herself to sleep.

The man? Oh, he had met a woman ten years older than himself, and after a whirlwind courtship of four weeks, had married her. Thinking it over afterward, he had bitterly told himself that she had married him. Still, he had never plucked up courage to write and tell the girl back east. He had returned her letters unopened and he hoped she thought him dead.

Sometimes, men forget to act manly—do they not? And long engagements are not always to be desired.

Peggy & Company

XLII.

The First Envelope Is Emptied in a Hurry, With Many Things Left in the Stores.

SATURDAY and pay-day have arrived and Peggy begins to feel that while the life of an office girl is perhaps a little confined and uneventful at times, it does have its enjoyable moments, such as Saturday noon when one is paid and has a half holiday.

When her envelope is handed her, just as to any other member of the office staff, she feels a real delight. It is lots of fun to think that it is all hers and that she has earned it herself. She skips about showing it to everyone and being felicitated on many sides.

"You clever person!" says Mr. Kelly. "That should buy quite a few nut sundae." As it later developed, Mr. Kelly's remark was a rather unfortunate one. It is probable that Peggy had had no definite plan for the distribution of her weekly wage. She had thought of the pleasure it would be to have it—all hers—but oddly enough she had gone little further than that.

Her hairless banter has had its suggestion. Eight dollars would buy quite a number of nut sundaes, true, and Peggy pauses to compute other of its purchasing possibilities. She finds it a very charming bit of reflection. Several pairs of lovely silk stockings could be had for eight dollars and perhaps a new waist or a lace collar. Absorbed in these agreeable thoughts, she puts on her hat and is away, quite forgetting to speak to father.

After two hours of active shopping about she stops at a soda fountain to ponder her perplexities. She has not made a purchase, of course, the whole of the time having been devoted to pricing stockings and lace collars. It was distracting to think that eight dollars wouldn't buy all that she wanted. Refreshed with a banana dip she sets forth again at last determined in her purpose.

She shall take that lovely clunky lace collar at $6.98, leaving a dollar for a pair of silk hose.

On leaving the store she comes to a sudden halt. She has only two cents left! The only other change she had had was the ten cents she spent for the sundae.

Fortunately father is still at the office when she reaches it, and Peggy sweetly explains that she wants to ride home with him. It's probable that it occurs to father after glancing at her bundles that there is an ulterior motive. And he's tempted to be just a little mean.

"Oh, all right then, Peggy, you can pay my fare."

Unmasked. "Why, Bridget!" exclaimed the mistress of the house to her servant, "so you're not going to leave me after all! Why did you decide not to marry the coal man?" "Well, I saw him yesterday for the first time with his face washed, and you've no idea, mum, how homely he is!"

Simplicity and Nobility. Between simple and noble persons there is always a quick intelligence; they recognize at sight and meet on a better ground than the talents and skills they may chance to possess, namely, on sincerity and uprightness. —Emerson.

Send for The Cook's Book By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill. It's FREE.

Our instructions to the famous editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine were: "Get up a book of recipes of the things people like best. Find the best way to make and bake each one. Then write it out so plainly that even an inexperienced housewife can't have a failure."

"The Cook's Book" was the result. Some of the 90 recipes were originated, many of them were improved upon, and all were personally tested by this best known authority on cooking in America, and she tells so clearly how she made everything that one cannot go astray.

While some of the cakes and pastry are elaborate enough for any occasion, the recipes are all thoroughly practical and call for no expensive and unusual ingredients. In addition to telling how to make them, the book is beautifully illustrated in colors showing how to arrange and serve the dishes appetizingly.

More than half a million of "The Cook's Book" are now in use in American households. Yet the demand is constantly increasing. Many send for two or three at a time to give to friends or young housekeepers. Don't depend on borrowing one from a neighbor—have one of your own.

How to Get "The Cook's Book"

In every 25c can of K C Baking Powder is packed a colored certificate. Send us one of these certificates (paste it on a postal card if you like) with your name and address plainly written, and "The Cook's Book" will be mailed free of charge. Only one book for each certificate.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

THINGS WORTH KNOWING. In arranging flowers it is often difficult to make them stand up nicely. This difficulty will be overcome if a piece of wire netting be crushed up into a ball and placed in the bowl to hold the flowers' stems.

Preventive for moths: Cloves, nutmeg, mace, caraway seeds, cinnamon and longane leaves, each one-half ounce; Florentine orris root, three ounces. Have all ground to a fine powder, mix with lemon juice, and put in small bags to place among the clothing. It gives them a fine perfume, which the moths dislike, and the clothing is saved from destruction.

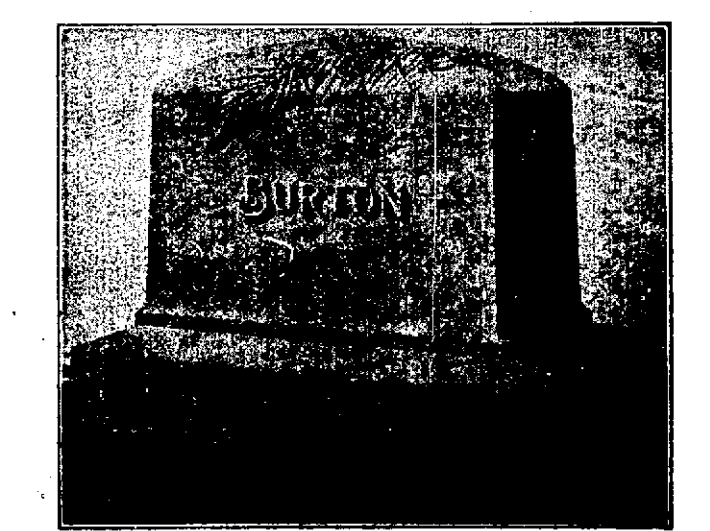

THE TABLE. Canapes—Rub the yolks of hard-cooked eggs to a paste with equal quantities of sardines and chopped peanuts. Moisten with lemon juice, season and serve on rounds of toast.

Cheap and Good Griddle Cakes—One pint flour (or as much as wanted), salt to taste, two teaspoonfuls baking powder, water enough to make soft batter, so it will run from the mouth of a pitcher. We like them very much.

Peanut de Luxe—Shell and pour boiling water over roasted peanuts to remove the skins. Dry, place in a frying pan and fry in hot, deep fat until they are a deep brown. Toss on brown paper and salt. The hot water swells the nuts, and this way of cooking makes them a delicious rival of salted almonds.

Salt-Rising Bread—Bring to boil half pint of new milk and one and one-half pints of water. Pour this boiling hot over two teaspoonfuls cornmeal and a pinch of salt; let it stand over night in a covered vessel. In the morning stir in flour enough to make a stiff batter and beat hard; place vessel in warm water and let it rise. In making up the bread put a little lard, salt and sugar to taste in it. Mold into loaves; let it rise again; bake 45 minutes. I have tried many recipes for salt-rising bread and find this the only sure one. It makes four fine white loaves of delicious, wholesome bread.

YOUR BLOOD

is the canal of life but it becomes a sewer if clogged up. All life consists of building up and tearing down and just in the same manner that the blood carries to the various parts of the body the food that the cells need for building up, so it is compelled to carry away the waste material that's torn down. These waste materials are poisonous and destroy us unless the liver and kidneys are stimulated into refreshed and vigorous life.

A SEWER

CHICAGO CALLED WESTERN DIVORCE CLEARING HOUSE

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 10.—Chicago is a clearing house for divorces of the entire middle west, according to Judge A. Baldwin of the Cook county superior court, who recently looked into the question of the steadily increasing divorces in the Windy City. New York, said the jurist, performs the same function for the east.

"People come here to obtain divorces without having the folks back home know about it," said Judge Baldwin. If they were divorced in their home states, the papers would be full of it. They come here and escape publicity. One of the parties to the suit is sufficiently prominent to attract the attention of the local newspapers.

"Those of us who hear hundreds of divorce cases every year feel that the ease with which divorces can be obtained, each separation not only weakens up a home, but also weakens society. It furnishes a precedent in each instance for another action for divorce."

TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION IN 60TH YEARLY CONVENTION

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Providence, Aug. 10.—Infantry Hall was filled to capacity today when Frank A. educational welfare features, the peaceful relations existing between employer and employee through arbitration and conciliation negotiations, and the general spirit of uplift that prevailed in the 700 unions with their 80,000 members.

WOMEN PRISONERS TO BE DAIRYMAIDS

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 10.—Ohio is planning to turn its women prisoners into dairymaids. This is the plan announced by the state board of administration in connection with the new reformatory for women near Marysville. It is expected that the new buildings there will be ready for occupancy before the first of next year. The reformatory is said to be one of the most modern institutions of its kind for women in the world.

Board of administration members plan to send a herd of cattle to the Marysville institution as soon as the prisoners are transferred to that place. The women will be given a chance to work in the dairy. They will also be assigned to light farm work on the grounds that will be beneficial to them. Of course, only the women who have passed certain physical tests will be given this kind of work to do.

Nature's Vivid Coloring.

The grandest phenomenon of nature is the glorious purple and crimson that sometimes spreads over the sky after sunset. Beginning with a splash of salmon hue, the evening purple spreads into the higher regions of the sky and covers the whole heavens with a curtain of deep red, full of mystery. In the mountains one is astonished to see this rose or violet color produce no shadow but bathe the entire landscape.

CATCHPOLE TELLS OF WORK WITH CHILDREN

JANESVILLE MINISTER AND MEMBER OF CHILD'S HOME SOCIETY GIVES SERMON SUNDAY.

SHOW GOOD RESULTS

Examples of Successful Work Are Given by Speaker.—Child Rescue is Christianity in Practice.

"The Providence in church of Christ and church enterprise itself, seen in a person's willingness to sacrifice," stated Rev. L. G. Catchpole yesterday morning in his sermon at the Carroll Memorial M. E. church on "Working With Children." Catchpole is a member of the Wisconsin Child's Home Society, which organization takes care of orphans, half-orphans and dependent children. Having been with the organization for many years, the speaker was able to present the child situation squarely and with experience, and his words were found to be intensely interesting. He took as his theme, the 15th chapter of St. Matthew, the second and third verses. They read as follows:

"And Jesus called a little child unto him, and set him in the midst of them, and said, 'Verily I say unto you, except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven.'"

"My work," continued the speaker, "is what I believe it to be. Christianity put into practice. Child rescue is my hobby, and is a work I like. Christ came to establish a new kingdom. The church started in to do things, and the churches past and present are to be credited for great things. The church is the influence of human life."

"Jesus Christ strived hard, accomplished much and then died young, and today we look upon him as the highest ideal. You will note that the great people who do great things are the childlike. The influence is gaining a stronghold with them, and making them great."

"Babies are selfish little things. They have not yet learned. They are helpless. They possess perhaps the capabilities, when developed, that might make them strong, but improvement and knowledge is needed. A little dog, cat or goat, of but one year old, meet the necessary walk of life, than is a baby infant one year old. The child has not power to save itself. Someone must look after the child until it has grown up with its own abilities developed. For this reason, Christ wanted his disciples to understand his powers, or the power of saving. We must all be an example of him, it is easy, and requires no special effort."

"We take care of the children in a very unique way. We see that they are placed in private homes in good Christian homes, with excellent families. We follow them up, and when the family of the house are satisfied with their adopted child, we see that that particular child is taken care of in its own way."

BABIES ON DISPLAY IN GLASS HOUSES

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Des Moines, Iowa, Aug. 10.—Sitting comfortably in amphitheatre seats, state fair visitors this year will be able to gaze down upon a little glass house and watch the examination of babies in the baby health contest. Three years ago, when the first contest was held, the examinations were conducted in a tiny room in the state college building and spectators had to content themselves with peering through the cracks.

The babies this year will first be taken into a booth where they will be carefully examined by the skilled physician for traces of measles, mumps, chicken pox or other contagious diseases. If such traces are found, the child will not be permitted to enter the contest. If all is well, the child will be taken to a large reception room to await his regular turn to go before two clerks who will take down his history.

Next comes the psychology room, then the dressing room, and then the general examination room where baby is considered for "fine points" much the same way in which thoroughbred dogs are gone over at a bench show. This last takes place in the glass house around which the amphitheatre seats are constructed.

JAPAN IS CONSTANTLY AT WAR IN FORMOSA

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

San Francisco, Aug. 10.—Japan is having a hard time in its attempts to pacify Formosa, according to arrivals here from the far east. At the time the Mikado acquired the island great hopes were entertained because of the fertility and natural resources of the country of making it support a considerable portion of the home country's surplus population. It might be doing this already, say those who have been there recently, were it not for the intractability of the natives. After years of effort to conquer them with small bodies of troops, many of which were cut to pieces in the remote interior, it is stated that the Japanese government has been launched in the hope of more speedily ending the constant warfare between the natives and Japanese authorities.

On The Spur of The Moment

Her Smile.

When'er she smiled, long years ago, Young Cupid drew his faithful bow, And sent his dart.

The mist of doubt did melt away, And confidence supreme held sway.

No sort of fear Did linger near, The future turned from dark to bright.

Illuminated by the sparkling light Of her fond smile.

Devoid of guile, When she softly murmured "Yes," I was enraptured, I confess.

That was, you know, Some years ago.

When'er she smiles upon me now, I can't explain why, but I vow It doesn't seem.

The old-time beam, It seems to start a sort of fear Of some disaster lurking near.

She smiles, the while, So free from guile, So frank and plainly innocent, It well conceals its deep intent.

But not for me, Because, you see, In passing years I have grown wise.

When'er she smiles with dancing eyes, I know this much: It means a "touch."

Good Intentions—Not Enough

The enlightened public today demands more. It demands absolute protection.

Every brewer tries to make pure beer and hopes it will be pure when you drink it, but—

They send it out in a light bottle, and it's the light that starts decay and develops the skunky taste.

Schlitz goes to you in a Brown Bottle which protects the beer from light and keeps it pure and wholesome from the brewery to your glass.

See that Crown is branded "Schlitz."

Words. A word, uttered in anger, can wreck a home or a nation; a word spoken in love can bring peace where before was war; still it is true, as said by Burke, that "a very great part of the mischief that vex the world arises from words."

SCIENCE NOTES

Because of the shifting of the trade routes owing to the opening of the Panama Canal, the possibility of a visit from the yellow fever mosquito is anticipated, and already efforts are being made to meet the pest half way and precautions have been taken to guard the country against it. Surveys have been made in many sections with the view of correcting and removing favorable breeding places, and rules and regulations are about to be put in force at all the ports which are calculated to keep the mosquito out.

A beautiful new flower has been evolved by a resident of California who has succeeded in budding a rose to a blackberry bush. Following the budding, the bush grew rapidly and bore profusely, and the new flower is white with irregular leaves shooting out from the centre very much like the bloom of a carnation. The foliage and stems retain the characteristics of the blackberry. In spite of the many crosses made by botanists, they have resulted in the creation of relatively few new fruits for consumption.

There seems to be some difference of opinion as to the effect of an iceberg on the temperature of the water in its immediate vicinity. The recent observations made by those on board the vessels of the United States ice patrol of the North Atlantic Ocean, show that the temperatures of the water in the ocean at points far removed from the presence of icebergs is as great as that in the immediate presence of the berg. This is in direct contradiction to the conditions as indicated by the reports of Barnes, and efforts will be made to secure further data on the subject before attempting to draw any final conclusions.

CAUSES OF UNREST IN LABOR WORLD TOLD BEFORE U. S. INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION SITTING AT CHICAGO; ILLINOIS LABOR LEADER CONDEMNS MUCH WORK, LITTLE PAY

Causes for industrial discontent, reasons for antagonisms between capital and labor—the big problems that affect employers and employees—are being reviewed at the sessions in Chicago of the United States commission on industrial relations. On the commission are Frank P. Walsh, chairman; Prof. John R. Commons of the University of Wisconsin; Mrs. J. Borden Harriman of New York; Frederick A. Delano, president of the Wabash railroad; Harris Weinstein of California; S. Thurston Ballard of Kentucky; John B. Lennon, treasurer of the A. F. of L.; James O'Connell of the A. F. of L., and Austin B. Garretson, president of the Order of Railway Conductors.

President John B. Walker of the Illinois State Federation of Labor, has been one of the most important witnesses. He condemned the present industrial system, saying that those who worked the hardest received the least pay.

TO ANNOUNCE RATE DECISION VERY SOON

James Harlan.

James S. Harlan is the chairman of the interstate commerce commission which will soon issue its decision on the proposed 5 per cent rate increase of the railroads. Advance information has it that the proposed increase will not be granted, but that an increase of $15,000,000 will be. The decision at the same time will demand, it is said, economies in railroad administration of $25,000,000 annually thus adding $40,000,000 annually to the road's revenue. The proposed increase of 5 per cent would have increased the railroads' annual revenues $100,000,000.

Five of a June Morning.

Got up before five and went down to replant corn. As I topped the hill the crows flew off, cawing angrily. "This is our time," they seemed to say. Found hill after hill scratched over and the sprouting corn scattered about. At 5 a. m. in June one has the weather of 9 a. m. in October or high noon in December.—From "A Farmer's Note Book," by C. E. D. Phelps.

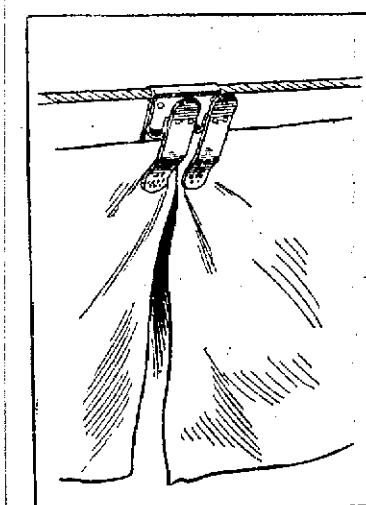

Penalty of Public Spirit.

If a man undertakes to do anything of public service without being part of a machine, or if an organization which is composed merely of representative citizens and has no predatory interests undertakes to do anything, the word which sums up the objections of the standpoint mind is "self-constituted."—Harper's Weekly.

An Improvement Which Has Been Recently Made by a Woman.

Clothespins have been in use a great many years without bringing out any radical changes in their design, but it has remained for a woman to think out a very notable improvement in the shape of an article which is not only more serviceable, being made of metal, but being made with a double clip so that one pin will secure portions of two pieces of wash at the same time, holding or releasing each without reference to the other. Women have for a long time been making one clothespin hold two ends, but it never before occurred to any of them to sit down and invent a clothespin in two parts as this one is, which will do the work much better.

A Kansas man lost a five-dollar bill and advertised for it. In a day or two a man appeared in his office, saying that he had seen the advertisement, and handed him the bill. In a few days the Kansas man was going through his "other" clothes and found the original bill which he thought he had lost. Notwithstanding the fact that the events in this story may sound suspicious, the lesson is obvious.—Kansas City Star.

Forty Years Ago
Janesville Daily Gazette, August 10, 1874.—Yesterday afternoon a vehicle and team belonging to Messrs. Porter and Brooks was on the road near Buob's picnic grounds when in consequence of an accident to the neck yoke the team became unmanageable and a run away and general smashup was the result. F. Holden, the driver, stuck to the seat and was slightly hurt. Those who were in the carriage escaped without damage but the horse after careering around the grounds freed themselves from the wreckage and dashed into the river. One of the team caused the bystanders some trouble in finding it difficult to extricate him from the mud. There will be two games of baseball this week at the fair grounds on Wednesday and on Friday. The first will be played with Beloit and the second with the Port Atkinson Ball club. The boy Arthur Pankhurst, whose skull was fractured on Friday, probably by a kick from the horse he was riding, is still in a very precarious condition at his home in the township of Rock.

A storm was imminent yesterday afternoon, but passed beyond our limits. There was much lightning and some thunder towards evening, and the temperature in the shade at noon was 90 degrees.

Cows in this city have reached a high grade of intelligence and it will soon be necessary to patent new gate fastenings if our gardens are to be protected from the knowing quadrupeds. The greatest puzzle will only delay the cows for one generation.

"I know it!" It is terrible lonely, sometimes, and nothing but the same old grind—dishes and cooking and cooking and dishes—

"Well, that's something to bring you back to earth, anyway, and I guess I had better be getting back home to fix James' supper. Some people complain because their husbands stay away too much, but I will say for mine that he hasn't missed a meal in ten years. And I wouldn't mind if he did now and then."

"Oh, goodness!" exclaimed Jane. "What do you think I've done? I've been so excited over the matinee that I forgot about our dinner entirely and Bob will be home any minute. There isn't a thing in the house, I know. Not even eggs. I can't imagine what to say to him either. I don't like to tell him that I've been to the theater."

"Gracious, you are a slave. Does he object to that?"

"No, not in the way you mean, Mrs. Collins, but there's the money for the tickets. You see, I saved it out of the household expenses and I don't want him to know."

"Well, you saved it, didn't you? Any time I can do that I spend it where and when I please. I figure that's my business and not James'."

"But we haven't much money for that sort of thing, and you see there's this, too," added Jane, hurriedly removing her new hat. "I got this out of the household money also, and I'm afraid it would be hard to explain such extensive economy."

"Well, I wouldn't worry, dear. Just put it away for a while and avoid unnecessary arguments. I know men do argue so. They want a woman to drudge and drudge and never derive any benefits from it."

"Oh, Mrs. Collins, Bob isn't that way at all. We do have to figure in nickels and cents and dimes, and I get so tired of being poor, but he tries to give me everything he can. That's what makes me feel bad, and I'm just wretched over the dinner. You'll pardon me, Mrs. Collins, but I guess I'll have to run out."

"I'd like to help you out, dear."

"Oh, could you?"

"I'm afraid not. It's Wednesday—stew night with us, and James will be eating the last of Sunday's roast."

"I didn't mean to bother you, Mrs. Collins, but it's the first time in my life that this has happened and I feel that I just can't face Bob, that's all."

"Why face him? Have him face you."

"It's the same thing."

"No, my dear, it isn't the same thing. When you have been married as long as I have you will find that the only way to get around your husband is to have him sorry for you. Don't ever let him get a chance for you to be sorry for him. It took me quite a while to get on to that and I'm giving you the benefit of my experience."

"How do you mean?"

"Honor bright, haven't you ever played possum?"

"Why, no."

"Then that makes it all the easier. You know—anything from a sick friend to a case of cholera. Why, even a headache would answer in your case if this is the first time."

"But I don't believe I could do that."

"Certainly you could. Now, if you're down with a sick headache you can't be expected to be taking care of household affairs, can you? What chance has a hot dinner against a case of hysteria?"

"But I wouldn't know how," Jane persisted.

"This little play doesn't need a rehearsal. Just get into your kimono, dear."

"But it's such a terrible fib, and I just hate to see Bob go hungry. I love him, Mrs. Collins. I do, really, and I just can't bear to deceive him this way."

"That's just it. Don't let him be disappointed in you because there aren't a couple of scrambled eggs in the house. I know men and when they're hungry, they're—well, not sentimental. But if he really thinks you are ill he'll be sorry for you."

"I'll try it then, but I know that I will never go through with it. I'll laugh right in his face."

"Then don't blame me if there's a scene. I've shown you the way and it has stood the test. Hurry up and get into the costume. I'll do the explaining."

Jane went into her room. There was a ring at the door.

"There he is now," exclaimed her sophisticated neighbor. "I told you, you were wasting your time."

"No, that isn't Bob, Mrs. Collins. He has a key. Would you mind seeing who it is?"

"It's only the postman," she called. "You're safe for a while."

"Is it something for me?"

"I didn't look. No, it's for your husband and from the butcher, too. I think there ought to be a law forbidding the sending of bills through the mails. They're such a disappointment."

Jane emerged clad in her kimono.

"Goodness!" exclaimed Mrs. Collins. "My dear Mrs. Reynolds, that won't do at all."

"What's the matter?"

"Your color. You'd never make him think you're an invalid with that complexion. Put some powder on."

"All right, but this is silly, my dear. I feel about as ill as I look."

"Never mind. Sh! Somebody's opening the front door with a key. Turn out the light and lie down on the bed. I'll meet him at the door."

Whistling an airy tune, Mr. Reynolds entered and was confronted by his buxom neighbor.

"Sh-h!" warned Mrs. Collins. "Your wife's ill. Don't wake her."

"Ill? What has happened?" he asked anxiously.

"Nothing's happened. Nothing serious. It's just a headache. I came over to see what I could do for her."

"She's in her room?"

"Yes, lying down."

He pushed past her to his wife's door.

"Why, Jane," he exclaimed. "I'm so sorry. What's wrong, dear?"

"Nothing very bad, Bob. I just sort o' seemed to go all to pieces today, and my head is splitting."

"My poor darling!"

"I'll be going now," called Mrs. Collins. "I do hope you'll be better soon, Mrs. Reynolds. I'll run over in the morning. If there's anything I can do before then, let me know."

"I will. Thank you awfully much, Mrs. Collins."

Reynolds hurried out of the bedroom. "Let me see you to the door, Mrs. Collins. I thank you, too, I am sure. I'll pull Mrs. Reynolds around all right."

He did not repeat his wife's invitation for the morning call. Somehow Mrs. Collins did not entirely appeal to him. He knew that she had been neighborly and a friend to his wife, but he was inclined at times to doubt the value of the friendship. Neighbors were none too plentiful in their colony and, such as they were, the pressing duties of the home kept most of them pretty closely confined. He knew that his wife was in need of company of some kind so he tried to keep his impressions of her quondam friend to himself. But husbands have a way of divining the truth about their wives' acquaintances and he was sure that such influence as she exerted over Mrs. Reynolds was not of the best. Her judicious efforts to appear fashionable without the means, her lack of taste and her obvious preference for the ret-ty city life she had left behind stamped her, to his mind, for just what she was. He had grave fears that his wife, despite the superiority of her intellect, sooner or later, would become imbued with the poisonous discontent that emanated from her neighbor and he dreaded the day of inoculation.

CHAPTER IV.

A Confession.

"Bob," called Jane, "I think I'll get up."

"Oh, you mustn't, dear. Stay right where you are. Do you feel as if you could eat something? I'll bring it to you."

"But if I tell you something are you going to be cross?"

"Cross with you, honey? That's impossible."

"But if I've done something awfully terrible, do you think you could forgive me?"

"I don't believe you could do anything I couldn't forgive."

"Supposing I had told you a frightful, black, inexcusable fib?"

"Why, Jane, what's on your mind? Fess up. I guess I can stand it all right."

"I haven't got a sick headache at all."

"That's fine. What were you doing, joking?"

"No, it wasn't a joke at all. It was just a plain lie. I went to the matinee with Mrs. Collins and forgot all about the dinner. I was afraid you might be angry. You'll forgive me, won't you, Bob?"

He stooped and kissed her. "Of course I will, dear. You know that I think more of you than a dinner any time. Was it Mrs. Collins who suggested the headache?"

"Now, don't ask questions, honey; I've confessed and you said you wouldn't be cross. But I'm awfully sorry about dinner."

"That's all right, Jane, only—"

"Only what?"

"Think of this, you know. It's Wednesday and he hasn't missed taking pot luck with us on his night off since we've been here. He's the only other member of our family."

"I know it, but I forgot all about him, too."

"Well, don't mind. Get yourself fixed up and I'll make it all right with Dick."

A welcome shout outside announced the arrival of the guest.

Beacon Dick and Deacon Dick, Reynolds called him, for he was always preaching his wild theories and yet was cheerful about them. His very presence seemed to bring a ray of sunshine in the Reynolds home. If all socialists could make their listeners smile as often as Dick did the host of converts would swell materially.

"What, ho!" called the visitor as he presented himself at the window. "Lower the portculis while I enter with a pickle and a bun!"

"What kind of a bun?" laughed his friend, raising the sash.

"A Wednesday bun; a regular day off bun. Gangway for the foe of the 'system.'"

"Go around to the door, you loon. What's the matter with you?"

Bob stepped to the door and threw it open. "Come in, come in, and welcome."

"Ah, landlord, what cheer have you tonight? You see I do not come empty-handed, Herr Host," and Dick displayed a huge parcel.

"I do see, Herr Most. What's within?"

"Food and drink; cheer for you and the missus, and three cheers for me." Reynolds reached for the package.

"Wait," said Dick. "I desire the housewife to be in on this that she may pay due tribute to her guest. This is no meager token of my regard. It is the sum total of a dollar's raid on a delicatessen shop."

"What's the idea? Don't you think we have anything to eat here?"

"Certainly, but these are delicacies dear to every woman's heart—and tongue. Here is some Wednesday night tongue; pickled tongue, if you will," and he held up a jar of it. "Here we have the invention of old Mr. Dill; one that has never been improved upon. More pickle. And here is condensed all the aroma of bleating goats handed, Herr Host," and Dick displayed a huge parcel.

"Food and drink; cheer for you and the missus, and three cheers for me." Reynolds reached for the package.

"Wait," said Dick. "I desire the housewife to be in on this that she may pay due tribute to her guest. This is no meager token of my regard. It is the sum total of a dollar's raid on a delicatessen shop."

"What's the idea? Don't you think we have anything to eat here?"

"Certainly, but these are delicacies dear to every woman's heart—and tongue. Here is some Wednesday night tongue; pickled tongue, if you will," and he held up a jar of it. Dinner Stories

John A. Hennessy, the far-famed graft investigator, said of a grafter the other day:

"He used to farm, you know. Well,

"I met an old farmer neighbor of his last month."

"Si," I said, "would you call him an honest man?"

"Si," scratched his whiskers and smiled, but he made no answer."

"Well, Si," I went on, "would you call him a liar, then?"

"Si," scratched his whiskers again and then he said:

"Now Mr. Hennessy, I dunno as I'd go so far as to call him a liar, but them as know him hereabouts do say that when he wants his pigs to come for their feed he had to git some body else to call 'em."

Simpkins asked a few of his former colleagues at the bank to come down for a few days' shooting. One morning they were all popping their guns off, without doing much damage, when a game warden came up and asked to see their licenses. To his friends' surprise Simpkins bolted as if all the furies were at his heels, while they discreetly retired to the house.

The game warden gave chase for about a mile and a half and then Simpkins came to a halt. Putting his hand into his pocket he produced a license. The panting copper

"She's lying down. Had a headache, but she's better now. She'll join us in a minute. Sit down and take off your gloves. Has the system got your overcoat?"

"It would if I gave it the chance, but I haven't bought one. Jane," he called out, "not sick, are you?"

"No, Dick; I'll be with you right away. You can help Bob set the table."

Reynolds stepped to his wife's door. "Jane, dear, what have we got for supper?"

"Now, hush," she answered; "you just tell him yourself. You said you would."

An Amateur.

"Some saintly folk in this town are always throwing the game of poker at our unoffending head," says a Georgia editor. "We want to say, once for all, that we don't know the game. If we had known it we'd be richer, at this writing, by a house and lot, a gold watch and chain, and a real diamond stud."

has gained ground in this century which looks upon the bearing and rearing of children as something coarse and vulgar and to be avoided, but the advent of Eugenics means much for the motherhood of the race. Happy is the wife who, though weak and ailing, depends upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore her to health, and when headaches and backaches are a thing of the past, brave sons and fair daughters rise up and call her blessed advertisement.

Getting Shallow.

Little Willie was taking his first trip abroad. About the third day out they passed a freighter. She was not carrying any cargo and about three feet of the bright red below her waterline was visible. Willie gazed a minute and then exclaimed: "Oh, papa, look how the ocean has gone down!"
